Your 90-Day AI Campaign Brief

Collab Link Building Campaign Brief: FlowMetric

Client: FlowMetric (flowmetric.io)

Strategy: Expert Roundup

Prepared by: [Senior SEO Strategist]

Date: July 2025

Campaign Overview

FlowMetric operates in a competitive SaaS landscape where domain authority and topical credibility directly influence organic pipeline. An expert roundup campaign positions FlowMetric's leadership team alongside recognized voices in finance, FP&A, and revenue operations — earning high-relevance backlinks while reinforcing brand authority with the exact audience the platform serves. This is a high-efficiency strategy for a company whose buyers (CFOs, VP Finance, FP&A directors) trust peer insight over advertising.

Strategic Rationale

Expert roundups work here for three reasons. First, FlowMetric's subject matter — AI-driven revenue forecasting — is timely and opinion-rich, which means finance leaders genuinely want to weigh in. That makes outreach conversion rates materially higher than generic guest-post pitches. Second, the strategy creates a natural co-promotion incentive: every contributor shares the finished piece with their audience, compounding referral traffic and earning secondary links without additional effort. Third, roundups produce linkable assets that continue to attract organic backlinks over time, particularly when the topic targets informational queries FlowMetric needs to rank for (e.g., "revenue forecasting best practices," "AI in FP&A").

Priority Partner Categories

Chargebee (88% fit score — prioritize): Chargebee's audience of subscription-revenue operators overlaps directly with FlowMetric's ICP. A roundup on billing-data-to-forecast pipelines gives both brands topical relevance. Chargebee also maintains an active blog and contributor program, making editorial collaboration straightforward.

Mosaic (Mosaic.tech) & Vena Solutions: Direct-adjacent FP&A platforms. While technically competitive, their audiences are highly aligned, and co-participation in a thought-leadership roundup signals market maturity, not rivalry. Target their content or community teams, not product marketing.

Gong & Clari: Revenue intelligence platforms whose users sit one seat over from FlowMetric's buyer. Roundup topics bridging sales forecasting and financial forecasting create a natural intersection. Both companies invest heavily in content and are proven collaborators.

CFO Dive (Industry Dive): Editorial publication with strong DA and direct readership among FlowMetric's buyers. Pitch a contributed roundup or co-branded data piece rather than a standard backlink ask — editorial teams respond to value, not link requests.

The Controllershship Group & FP&A Trends Group: Community-driven organizations with newsletter and event footprints. Roundup participation gives them free content for their channels. Offer finished assets they can repurpose.

90-Day Execution Plan

Weeks 1–4 — Research & Prep: Finalize 3–4 roundup topics validated against keyword opportunity and partner relevance. Build a scored prospect list of 30–40 individual contributors across the partner categories. Draft outreach sequences, contributor briefs, and a content production timeline. Secure internal SME availability for FlowMetric's own contributions.

Weeks 5–8 — Outreach: Launch personalized outreach in priority order (Chargebee first). Target a 40%+ response rate by leading with the value proposition to contributors — visibility, backlink, and audience exposure. Collect responses on a rolling basis. Begin drafting and designing the first roundup asset as soon as 5+ responses are confirmed.

Weeks 9–12 — Follow-Up & Scale: Publish the first 1–2 roundups. Notify all contributors with share-ready assets (social cards, pull quotes, embed snippets). Send a second-wave outreach to remaining prospects using the live piece as social proof. Identify top-performing contributors for deeper collaborations (co-authored posts, webinar swaps, data studies).

Success Metrics

- Backlinks acquired: 15–25 unique referring domains within 90 days.
- Average referring domain DR: 50+.
- Outreach response rate: 40%.
- Organic traffic to roundup assets: Establish baseline; target 500+ sessions/month by month four.
- Contributor-driven social shares: Track amplification per published piece (target 20+ shares per roundup).

Risk & Mitigation

Low response rates from marquee partners. Mitigation: Lead outreach with a specific, low-effort ask (one 2–3 sentence answer). Provide the question, format, and deadline upfront. Reduce friction to near zero.

Roundup content reads as generic or shallow. Mitigation: Choose narrow, opinionated topics ("Where most FP&A teams get forecasting automation wrong") rather than broad prompts. Edit aggressively for substance.

Contributors participate but don't promote. Mitigation: Make sharing effortless — deliver pre-written social copy, tagged graphics, and a short personal note when the piece goes live. Follow up once. Don't assume organic amplification will happen on its own.

This brief is ready for internal alignment and client approval. Next step: finalize roundup topics and begin prospect scoring for the full partner list.
